QUESTION 13

Scholars generally estimate subscribers to Freedom s Journal (1827-1829), the United States" first African American newspaper, at around 800. based on subscriptions to the Rights of AIL an African American newspaper founded in 1829 as a successor to Freedom s Journal by a former editor of that newspaper. But Gross argues that many more than 800 readers probably subscribed to Freedom s Journal because many of its subscribers, dissatisfied with the direction ultimately taken by the paper, refused to subscribe to the Rights of All. In any case, the figure of 800 subscribers would make the circulation of Freedom s Journal close to that of other weekly papers of the time Its number of readers, however, would have been much larger: copies were often shared. and African American organizations subscribed to Freedom s Journal, providing nonsubscribers access to the paper

African American organizations\' subscriptions to Freedom s Journal are mentioned in the passage primarily in order

- to.
- A. dispute Gross's claim about the probable number of readers of Freedom S Journal
  - B. identify the primary subscribers to both Freedom s Journal and The Rights of All
  - C. help account for a possible difference between the number of subscribers to Freedom s Journal and to The Rights of All.
  - D. cite a factor that casts doubt on most scholars assumptions about the number of subscribers to Freedom $ Journal
  - E. illustrate why the readership numbers for Freedom s Journal should be distinguished from the subscription numbers

QUESTION 15

The relevance of the literary personality--a writer's distinctive attitudes, concerns, and artistic choices--to the analysis of a literary work is being scrutinized by various schools of contemporary criticism. Deconstructionists view the literary personality, like the writer's biographical personality, as irrelevant. The proper focus of literary analysis, they argue, is a work's intertextuality (interrelationship with other texts), subtexts (unspoken, concealed, or repressed discourses), and metatexts (self-referential aspects), not a perception of a writer's verbal and aesthetic "fingerprints." New historicists also devalue the literary personality, since, in their emphasis on a work's historical context, they credit a writer with only those insights and ideas that were generally available when the writer lived. However, to readers interested in literary detective work--say scholars of classical (Greek and Roman) literature who wish to reconstruct damaged texts or deduce a work's authorship-- the literary personality sometimes provides vital clues.

Which of the following does the author mention in the passage as a concern of (de)constructionists?

- A. A knowledge of the writer's other literary works
- B. A knowledge of the writer's artistic preferences
- C. A cognizance of a work's unarticulated ideas
- D. An appreciation of a work's aesthetic distinctiveness
- E. An awareness of a work's relation to the era in which it was written
